Dual Education And Youth In The Education System In Uzbekistan

Turamurodov Ulugbek,

A teacher at the Pedagogical Institute of Termez State University

As each society marks its own path of development, of course, it also pays special attention to the upbringing of young people who are the flower and trust of the country. In general, since the beginning of mankind, the upbringing of children has been carried out in one way or another. In the time of the primitive community, this process may have taken place sometimes consciously and sometimes unconsciously. In any case, the methods of upbringing have been constantly evolving, and as time has passed, as life has become more complex, they have taken on a deeper and broader meaning. In general, education has not escaped the attention of the people.

This means that from ancient times the upbringing of children has played an important role in human life. Every parent wants their child to grow up to be a smart, polite, kind, hard-working person, and the precious power tries to create conditions for it, to see its perfection, the fruit of its labor. The success of his offspring will not spare his strength or, if necessary, his life in the way of his future.

It is also clear that the upbringing of the younger generation was a private affair of every family thousands of years ago, but later rose to the social level.

After the national independence of our country, the level of education of the younger generation has risen to the level of a real state policy. In other words, the improvement of the education system, the comprehensive and harmonious upbringing of the younger generation is embedded in the essence of the ongoing political, economic, social, spiritual and legal reforms. Because the construction of a legal democratic state based on the principles of a market economy was started for the younger generation of our people. This means that in the future, the generation that will accept it from today's generation and continue the good work started, strengthen the independence of Uzbekistan, raise its prestige and prestige in the world, demonstrate in practice that the Uzbek people are second to none should be worthy of dreams, hopes and aspirations. was. The implementation of dual education in the education system is one of the most pressing issues of today. Young people should be able to apply the knowledge they have acquired in education in their lives and activities.

Indeed, as noted by President Mirziyoyev, who lives in cities and villages that have radically changed in a short period of time, rebuilt on the basis of national and modern architectural traditions, envied our friendly enemies, who manages the industrial enterprises that process the country's underground and surface resources. , who are served by parks, thousands of miles of smooth roads, who are growing up in modern educational institutions, which are being built at great expense, young men and women who are preparing to step on the threshold of a great life today, built with great hard work and to receive clear answers to the question of whether he values spiritual riches, whether he is able to preserve and multiply them.

From the first days of independence, these issues have been in the focus of the government. We clearly see this in the works of the First President Islam Karimov, in the decisions of the government. In these works and documents, the zeal for the development of the motherland, the wise determination of the direction, the feeling of selfless service to the people and the noble goals in this direction are embodied. These ideas have given our people a great opportunity and inspiration, strengthened their hopes for the future. Therefore, President Mirziyoyev said: "In our work to comprehensively strengthen the independence of our country, ensure sustainable economic and social development of our country, the well-being of our people, the words of the great President Islam Abduganievich Karimov" I believe that it will always give us strength and enthusiasm. "

Today we see that the independence of our country has reached a new level, a great change and acceleration has taken place in its development. At the same time, the issue of educating young people is not ignored, on the contrary, it is a great incentive. Because the young people who are a great force in all spheres, who have modern knowledge and skills, who think independently and innovatively, who are able to take responsibility for the future of our country, are the backbone of our state and people. Therefore, from the first days of independence, raising the spiritual world of young people, educating them in the spirit of national and universal values was considered an urgent task, and today it is equally important. The urgency of this task is confirmed by the following statement of President Sh. Mirziyoyev "It is well known that the upbringing of the younger generation has always been important and relevant," he said. But in the 21st century we live in, this issue is really becoming a matter of life and death. "The better the upbringing, the happier the people," say the sages. In order for education to be perfect, there must be no gap in this matter. "[2]

At the initiative of the President of the Republic of Uzbekistan in the introduction of dual education in the education system, students in the field of pedagogy have four days of internship at the university, two days at school. The young cadres who are growing up through this method combine theory and practice.
